

This week in Key Stage 1, we have been reading a funny story called ‘That Rabbit Belongs to Emily Brown’ by Cressida Cowell. The children have acted out a scene where the queen tries to persuade Emily to give up her favourite toy – they were very inventive! In Geography, we are watching out for the arrival of Spring and looking for plants that arrive when the sun comes out! It is also Science Week this week and next, so Penguin Class got started with their first experiment, using an egg; the children were fascinated!

Year 5 are being inspired by CS Lewis and the world of Narnia and they will be writing their own stories where a character is transported to a different land. They have been learning to ISHAMPOO which is not about hair washing but a way of remembering different features of figurative language which can make their writing really exciting. In art the children used a range of materials with different textures to add details to their retro futurism pictures.
